

EXAMPLE

Present:

I am a senior human resources professional with progressive leadership experience in a manufacturing unionized environment. Having a generalist background, I have contributed in the areas of senior level recruitment, compensation, labour relations and training and development. My strong negotiation and decision-making skills have enabled me to resolve a number of grievances and consult with senior level management on numerous business issues

Past:

After graduation I was hired by Company A as a recruiter to assist with staffing of a new plant facility. After five years because of my strong labour relations background and many successful contract negotiations for the unionized staff, I moved on as a Human Resources generalist, where I was successful in developing a Health and Safety program and administering a new compensation and benefits program. Most recently as a Human Resources Manager, I lead a team of five HR coordinators in introducing a new HRIS system which has led to significant cost savings, I learned a great deal in this role about how to motivate and engage a team utilizing a hands-on supportive management style. With the U.S ownership, ABC Company has gone through restructuring. As part of the most recent changes, a number of department and clients groups were consolidated and a result my position along with several other was eliminated.

Future:

I am looking for a role that will enable me to utilize my strong people management, interpersonal and communication skills to build relationships at all levels of the organization. I believe my experience and skills I would make an immediate contribution to your team and organization
